

RIDGWAY IMMEDIATELY CONFERS WITH MACARTHUR UPON ARRIVAL IN TOKYO; EX-COMMANDER REPLIES TO CHARGES

Authoritative Sources Say Deposed Commander Will Leave for America Considerably Sooner Than The Three Weeks He Said He Would Take

By Howard Handelman

(Far Eastern Director, I. N. S.)
TOKYO, Apr. 12—(INS)—Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway arrived in Tokyo from Korea late today and went immediately into conference with Gen. Douglas MacArthur whom he replaces as supreme commander in the Far East.

Ridgway's arrival followed by a few hours a statement by MacArthur in his own behalf, declaring that the deposed commander in chief has "complied meticulously with all directives" throughout his 50-year military career.

It was MacArthur's first reply to Washington charges on which President Truman based his action Wednesday in relieving the five-star general of the Army of all his commands.

Ridgway and Army Secretary Frank Page, Jr., who accompanied him on the flight from Korea, motored straight from Tokyo's Haneda Airport to the United States embassy.

There Ridgway entered into conference with MacArthur at the latter's residence where the 71-year-old general had spent the day making preparations to return to the United States for the first time in 14 years.

Authoritative sources said MacArthur would leave for America considerably sooner than the three weeks he said it would take him to be ready to appear before Congress and state his case, if invited to do so.

Sitting in with Ridgway and MacArthur at the closed door session in the embassy residence was Maj. Gen. Doyle Hickey, chief of staff at Tokyo headquarters. Hickey had taken over temporary command from MacArthur, pending Ridgway's arrival to assume the supreme commander's duties.

While the dramatic meeting between MacArthur and his 57-year-old successor was in progress, a warrant officer rushed into the embassy compound with a brown envelope marked, "Operational—Immediate."

The message was addressed to Pace, though the Army Secretary was not attending the conference at MacArthur's residence.

Ridgway and Pace landed at Haneda Airport in the latter's Constellation at 4:15 p. m. (2:14 a. m. EST). At 4:42—29 minutes later—the conference with MacArthur began.

Hickey met Ridgway and Pace at the airport and accompanied them in a black limousine to the embassy where a large crowd of Japanese had gathered outside the gates, together with reporters and news photographers.

Before leaving the airport, Ridgway, still attired in the combat uniform he wore as U. S. Eighth Army commander in Korea, told newsmen

TO TEST YOUR DRIVING

Wouldn't you like to know what you would do if a big box fell off a truck right in front of your car? That's a question asked in a recent article by Howard W. Blakeslee, science writer. And he went on to ask whether you wouldn't like to know if you could stop in time if a pedestrian stepped out in front of you from between parked cars.

Most drivers would, even though they have an approximate idea of what they are likely to do in an emergency. They would like to know for certain, without having the actual experience.

Information like that can be stored away and used to prevent accidents.

So the news that there is now a new device, called a roadmeter, that can give drivers the facts on how they will act when the unexpected happens should be welcomed. It's described as a combination of an electronic brain recorder and tricky motion pictures. The driver watches the picture while the machine sets down his responses.

Devices on this order have been produced before this. But this one promises a particularly good appraisal of the driving ability of anyone who submits his case to it. An insurance company, which sponsors the apparatus, plans to make it available at exhibitions and other places where drivers can use it.

Here's hoping the company gets a raft of them circulating. The more drivers know just what they can expect from themselves, the safer roads will be.

MARK TWAIN'S BOOKS

What kind of books, reference and otherwise, Mark Twain cherished will be evidenced when his library is auctioned off in California. The collection is not a large one as such libraries go, approximately 3,000 volumes. It has been in the possession of a surviving daughter, Mrs. Clara Sammons, wife of an orchestra conductor.

Mark Twain had almost no formal education. It is certain that most of what he wrote did not come out of books. "Tom Sawyer" and "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" emerged from his magnificent imagination, which had fed on the lore of the Mississippi River and the neighborhood of Hannibal, Mo.

"The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," which made him famous overnight, was not a work pondered in a book-lined retreat.

When all this has been said, there remains the philosophic side of Mark Twain, what modern critics consider the frustrated side, for he lived up to the classic concept of the humorist as one who nurtures an inner sadness at human follies.

Twain had a strong cynical streak in his writings and speeches, as well as a personal lightheartedness of expression that he concealed in deference to false niceties of the then prevailing taste. The whole man did not appear until after his death.

Ridgway Immediately Confers With MacArthur Upon Arrival in Tokyo

He would confer with MacArthur "at the General's pleasure." Evidently, MacArthur was ready immediately to receive the man who steps into his post as American and United Nations commander in chief in the Far East.

Ridgway also told reporters he knows Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, his successor as Eighth Army commander, very well.

"We fought side by side as corps commanders toward the end of the last war," Ridgway remarked.

MacArthur's insistence he had always followed all orders was contained in a statement issued by his military secretary and long-time friend, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney. It was a refutation of charges that MacArthur had exceeded his authority by moving from the military into the political sphere and had defied Washington orders to clear all public utterances with the Defense and State Departments.

The statement, headed "Immediate release," set forth seven major points, of which the fifth was:

"The General feels that he has complied with all directives he has received, not only recently, but throughout his entire military service."

The first point referred to a White House directive of last December 6th and said it "was not directed to General MacArthur personally but was directed to all executive agencies of the Government."

Immediately after issuance of this directive, point number two set forth, MacArthur "submitted a proposed communique to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who informed him among other things that it was not necessary to submit communications referring to military operations."

The third point of Whitney's statement asserted that President Truman in a January 13th news conference "appeared to this headquarters to specifically define General MacArthur's authority but denied that there was any curb on his authority."

"Furthermore," said the statement in its fourth point, "the directive of December 6th, by its terms and spirit, was interpreted at this headquarters as applying solely to formal public statements and not communications, correspondence or personal conversations with others."

In its point number six, Whitney's statement referred to MacArthur's statement of March 24th and his letter to House Republican Minority Leader Joseph Martin, sent four days earlier.

In his March 24th statement, MacArthur announced his readiness to meet with the Communist commander in chief on the battlefield to discuss a truce for the avoidance of further bloodshed.

In his letter to Martin, the General had urged the use of Chinese Nationalist troops in the UN's fight to stem the Red aggression in Korea.

Whitney's statement declared MacArthur interpreted both of these controversial utterances "as dealing exclusively with the military situation and within the area of his uncontested authority to speak."

"The one bore no slightest relationship to the other," it was added. In the last of its seven points, Whitney's statement called attention to the reference made in Washington to "arms for reserve elements of the Republic of Korea."

FISH KEEPS ITS PLACE ON MENUS FOR THE FAMILY

By Frances Vannoy

Home Economics Extension Rep.

Fresh or frozen, cleaned and dressed, filleted or steaked, fish is a favorite dish. There's a place in your diet for fish all year round.

Servings of fish are usually one-third or one-half pound of edible fish per person. When frozen fish you buy is wrapped in parchment paper or cellophane and you plan to use it soon, wrap it in another paper before putting it in the refrigerator. This extra wrapping prevents absorption of odors by other foods in the refrigerator as the fish thaws.

Cook frozen fillets, steaks, and dressed fish as if they were in the frozen form, but allow additional cooking time. Thaw fish in the refrigerator rather than at room temperature.

For fish that will really melt in your mouth, try this recipe for baked stuffed fish:

3 or 4 pound fish, dressed and thawed.

1½ teaspoon salt.
Bread stuffing.
4 tablespoons butter or other fat, melted.

3 slices bacon, optional.
Clean, wash, and dry fish. Sprinkle inside and out with salt. Stuff fish loosely, and sew the opening with needle and string, or close with skewers. Place in a greased baking pan. Brush with melted fat.

Put bacon on top. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees F., 40 to 60 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Baste fish occasionally with drippings or melted fat while it bakes. Remove string or skewers, put on a hot platter, and serve plain or with a sauce. Makes six servings.

A tasty piquant sauce for baked fish is lemon butter sauce: Blend together 4 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, and ½ teaspoon pepper. Serve hot.

Child Who Dawdles at Meals

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

MANY a child is so bad because a brother or sister is so good. Many are the letters describing a child who is stubborn, gets tantrums or does all sorts of things the parents consider bad; following with the account of another child (usually younger) who is reported as practically perfect, especially in all the ways the first child is troublesome. Also many a child at school does poorly at books because a brother or sister does so well.

Even the elder of two young children may be a grave eater problem or toilet problem or sleeping problem chiefly because a younger child eats so well, cooperates so well in bathroom habits or sleeps so well.

Sits and Daydreams

Of her son, five, a mother writes: "Dear Dr. Myers: He will sit and daydream through a whole meal or else just talk and never eat between talking. Last night while we ate most of our main course he spent the time daydreaming and eating one section of a cloverleaf roll. And we eat slowly as compared to most people. He will just hold food in his mouth. He doesn't care whether he eats or not. He never eats between meals or even asks for anything. I fully believe part of the trouble is because of our nagging at him to keep still and eat, saying 'Tables are for eating, not talking,' or else telling him to stop dreaming and keep eating. "Now the baby, 16 months old, is the exact opposite of the older in eating habits and opens his mouth just like a bird when a spoon of food comes at him. We have been very definite in not ever comparing the two of them to each other."

Constant Comparison

In writing this mother I tried to help her see that even though they did not compare the children verbally, they constantly compared them in the satisfaction they revealed over the eating by the younger child, who is still being fed though he's old enough to feed himself most foods.

She, of course, knows they should quit nagging at the older boy about his eating but finds it hard to let him alone. It's always so much easier to see the reason for such problems than to remove these causes, since doing so requires so much self-discipline by both parents. Hard as the task is, it is not impossible. Perhaps one good way to begin on a long, slow but promising program is for both parents and their relatives and friends to build up the problem-child by more approvals not directly related to the troublesome problems. To have more good times with him when all is well, so as to make him feel himself a more worthy and important person and member of the family group.

Schmidt had said earlier: "The question is whether the sovereign states have sufficient courage to recognize their own responsibilities in handling their highway obligations or whether, in the interest of apparent expediency, they will follow the line of forfeiting their birthright in the direction of obedience to an all powerful central form of government which has as its ultimate object complete control of all governmental activities."

The withdrawal of the Federal Government from the field of gasoline taxation and motor excise taxes with these funds accruing to the states would do more to improve the highway situation than any increases in federal aid appropriations or increases in the federal share for highway construction."

Congress, Call M'Arthur

making suggestions of policy which run counter to the preconceived notions of the President's cronies—then the President is to all intents and purposes a dictator, and Constitutional government, along with popular sovereignty, freedom of speech, and personal liberty, are on their way out.

Congress withdrew reluctantly, a few weeks back, from its demand that the President dismiss Secretary of State Acheson, whose atrocious mishandling of the Chinese situation led to the Korean war—in which we have a bear by the tail that is slaughtering American boys without advancing any good cause one iota.

That concession by Congress was in an effort to establish unity. But the moment the President gets the worse of an argument with General MacArthur, he does what he was unwilling to permit Congress to do even when Congress was right—and fires the one outstanding general in the army with a victorious record in the arena where the fighting is going on.

Innumerable questions must be answered. One is the status of the United Nations. General MacArthur was supposedly working for the United Nations in the Korean War. How is it that he could be fired on the long decision of the President, without the dismissal going through the U. N. which designated him as their field commander? Does this mean that the whole U. N. is just a phony publicity stunt—that it is, like the "Atlantic Charter," not more than a few scraps of paper? Congress ought to find out whether it is on the up and up, or just a wing of the New Deal party, before it sinks any more money in it.

Another great question is what sort of a feud goes on in the military department. All signs point to a bitter quarrel beneath the surface. It is obvious that General Marshall, whose own record in China is one of dismal failure, has no reason to love General MacArthur, who won some sensational victories in the same arena.

This disagreement has spread far. It has been quite apparent in recent months that the anti-MacArthur faction at Washington has enlisted support in a cabal to get him removed—notably, among the British. The danger in this type of factionalism lies in the fact that the British have never seen eye to eye with us on the Korean tangle anyhow, and have been much closer to the Russian slant than our own. The question immediately arises of whether they have been against MacArthur for any more substantial reason than merely to slow down Uncle Sam in doing something the British disapproved.

At any event, Congress ought to get to the bottom of this whole tangle. If, as may be the case, military or diplomatic messengers have been sent from Washington to the British Empire to build up sentiment against the American (and U. N.) Commander in the most sensitive spot on the globe, then somebody ought to tell the American people about it.

Still another great mystery which now ought to be exposed is the nature of the Communist influences in our State Department which have thus far succeeded in keeping Uncle Sam from joining forces with the only two major forces on earth which are so strenuously opposed to Communism that they can be counted on to fight it to the last ditch.

There are only two such pools of strength. One is Spain. The other is the Nationalist China Army of upwards of 800,000, now holed up on the Island of Formosa. It must not be forgotten that President Truman found it possible to condone all other differences of opinions between himself and General MacArthur—until the latter raised the question of why American boys were being sent to die in Korea virtually unsupported by other United Nations troops—when hundreds of thousands of trained anti-Red Chinese fighters were resting in enforced idleness.

All these questions ought to be answered, and Congress never had a more serious obligation than digging out the answers for the information of the real sovereigns of this nation—meaning, of course, the American people.

Much disappointment has been expressed because nothing has been available to take the place of the sensationally popular crime investigations on television.

Here is perfect material for such a televised investigation, on a matter which is of profound importance as well as sensationally dramatic.

LET'S HAVE IT OUT!

was readied for the execution of the "men with nine lives."

Had not the Circuit Court acted, Darcy, Zietz and Foster would have died in the chair early this morning.

Gov. Fine declared in postponing the executions that he had "no other alternative but to grant respite" in view of the legal steps undertaken by Darcy's counsel to save him from the chair.

The Governor declared in a statement issued at Harrisburg:

"The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third District has stayed the execution of David Darcy until further order of the Court to permit Darcy to appeal from the order of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court to the Supreme Court of the United States.

"In these circumstances, there is no other alternative but to grant respite for David Darcy, Foster and Zietz, who were involved in the same murder.

"Respite to all three men are being issued from the week beginning Monday, April 9, until the week beginning Monday, May 7."

The reference by Fine to the State Supreme Court concerned the Commonwealth's highest tribunal's refusal to grant a writ of habeas corpus to Darcy on Tuesday.

Darcy has been seeking a new trial on the contention his first trial in Bucks County Court at Doylestown violated his Constitutional rights under the "due process" clause of the 14th Amendment.

The appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court won't exhaust Darcy's legal maneuvering to escape the death penalty, however.

Observers said if the U. S. Supreme Court rejects his appeal for a writ of certiorari, Darcy's counsel can request the Circuit Court to reverse an order of the Middle District Court.

Federal Judges Albert Watson and John W. Murphy, sitting at Scranton, yesterday rejected Darcy's petition to them for a writ of habeas corpus.

In staying Darcy's execution, the Circuit Court acted after a 45-minute plea by former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, representing the convicted Philadelphia youth.

U. S. Judge Albert E. Maris, sitting with Judges Harry E. Kalodner and William Hastie, ruled after Margiotti's plea that "The Court is Darcy, Foster, and Zietz now have been literally snatched from the chair nine times after being condemned to die for slaying William Kelly, 38, as they fled a holdup at the Feasterville Inn in 1947.

BENSALEM OPENS THE SEASON WITH AN EASY VICTORY

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Apr. 12 — Bensalem Township high inaugurated its 1951 baseball season yesterday afternoon by triumphing over Upper Moreland high, 7-1, on Hantsfield field, Bensalem Township.

Bob Whitfield and Dallas "Lefty" Jenks did the hill work for the Owls, each permitting but one hit. Whitfield whitewashed the visitors during his four-inning term. Jenks would have done likewise during his three-inning stretch but Jack Weaver dropped a fly ball to give the Upper Moreland team an unearned run in the last canto. Whitfield and Jenks had eight strikeouts between them.

"Al" Bader topped the Bensalem batters with a double and single while Joe Mikelatis walloped a triple in the fifth. Bensalem loaded the bags in the first inning and scored a run on Harry Robinson's single but failed to push over more.

112 MARITAL PERMITS ISSUED LAST MONTH

Bristol Sends 22 to County
Seat to Secure Marriage Licenses

SEVEN FROM CROYDON

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 12 — The Bucks County Orphans' Court, here, reports 112 marital permits were recorded this past month, showing a creeping up the scale toward the annual Spring high in the purchase of marriage licenses.

Doylestown, with only three brides and one groom-to-be, dropped to sixth place in the county. Bristol sent 22 for bridal path passes; 12 came from Quakertown, 8 from Perkasie, seven from Croydon, six from Sellersville, and five apiece from Langhorne and Morrisville.

The upper portion of the county, however, with 47 candidates, was only ten behind the lower section in the long run.

There were also 18 applying for Bucks county licenses from other parts of the state, and from five other states. New Jersey sent 25 brides and grooms, half coming from Trenton alone. Two arrived from California, and one each from Indiana, Illinois and New York.

Philadelphia provided 51 men and women with requests for licenses.

The upswing of youthful middle-agers also continued as is the custom in the Spring, with 20 grooms and 37 prospective brides needing parental consent. Broken down there were nine men of 20 years of age, two were 18 and only one of 17.

The youngest applicant was a Philadelphia bride of 16. There were also seven brides of 20, 14 were 19, nine were 18 and six were 17 years of age.

Even those of full age were in the youthful bracket, and only six grooms and four brides were born before the turn of the century. The oldest groom was 63 years of age, and the oldest bride, 65.

In the divorced group, the trend seems to continue toward early remarriage after the final decree. Of the 29 with divorce papers, more than half had severed former marital ties over a period ranging from a few days to less than a year. Nine others had waited less than three years.

Eleven widowers and 12 widows were also seeking a return to the marriage state, and here again, 18 of the total 23 waited no longer than five years, four of these having lost mates in 1949 and eight in 1950. One man, however, waited for 22 years before marrying again.

Childs Arrange Party For Daughter Kathleen

CROYDON, Apr. 12 — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Childs entertained on Saturday afternoon in honor of the eighth natal anniversary of their daughter, Kathleen. Pink and blue streamers hung from the ceiling in the living room and dining room nook. Whistles, hats, and plastic baskets filled with candies were given as favors. Cake and ice-cream were served.

"Peggy" and "Billy" Weber won the prizes for the magic carpet game; and "Margie" Wendel, Philadelphia, won the clothespin game. Others attending were: "Bobby," "Jimmy" and Mary Ellen Cressman; Suzanne Corwell, Robert Cressman, Kenneth Wendel, Phila.; Lois Taylor, Robert Wheeler, Croydon.

Kathleen was the recipient of many gifts among which were a pair of shoe roller skates, a gift from her parents, Robert Cressman remained to spend the week-end with Kathleen. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Childs entertained Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Volz and son Raymond Paige, Philadelphia, at dinner in Kathleen's honor.

EXPERIENCES HELP IN MOULDING THE CHILD'S CHARACTER

By Frances Vannoy
(Home Economics Extension Representative)
Today most parents do not think of obedience in children as an end in itself. They are concerned with ways and means of effectively molding their child's character. The end result, which the farsighted parent holds before his mind's eye, is the person the child will become.

Psychologists tell us that environment helps mold a child. Rich experiences contribute to growth in personality. Excursions to places of interest are ways of enriching a child's life. Even a trip to the store may afford new and different experiences. There are many things to see along the way and many people to meet.

It is difficult for a child who has everything done for him to develop self-dependence. It is difficult for a child who has all his plans thought through and all his problems solved, to develop skill in thinking for himself.

The request to "do it himself" comes sometime during a child's second year. Usually the task he has picked out is much too difficult for inexperienced mind and hands. Failure may sometimes be profitably experienced, but not too often.

Help your child each day to live up to his highest capacities. This does not mean that the child should be pushed; quite to the contrary, it means that parents must observe and know their child. Then they can make it possible for him to achieve the best that is in him each day as he builds for his future.

The last pouring of concrete was made several days ago and workmen are now making preparations for the installation of the pipes which will be finally connected when the street project is done.

The new rotary filter bed, the second one to be built at the sewer disposal plant at the foot of Harvey avenue, will not be put into service until the West End sewer system is ready for operation.

Supt. Tomlinson said the men are now working on the sewer line from the Hillside Pumping Station towards South Main street. The new sewer line will run from this station through the fields at the rear of the Bell Telephone Co. storage or garage building and come out between the property of Reuben K. Krout and the Atlantic Service station on the service station's property.

It will require 416 feet of sewer line from the Hillside station to South Main street and then take another 200 feet to connect up with a sewer line at the intersection of Hart avenue and South Main st.

When that link is completed, the Hillside unit and the West Ashland, west of Franklin street, and the entire West end sewer expansion system will function as one network.

Because of the inclement weather, which consisted of a rainy spell, Supt. Tomlinson was unable to predict when the laying of the sewer lines will be finished.

Naturally, there will be no service until each house or business has been connected which will require some time even after the laying of the pipes has been completed.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1951 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 12 — Now that we are sparring around in the preliminary stages of a war with Russia, Representative Robert B. Chipfield, Illinois Republican, thought it was a good idea to figure out just how Russia got strong enough to challenge us.

The Illinois Republican figures that Russia took such a pasting from Germany during World War II, that only by extensive outside help could she be ready for another war. Russia got the help, all right, and most of it was from the U. S., the Congressman says in the April issue of Reader's Digest.

Chipfield balances the books on U. S.-Soviet mutual aid this way: Eleven billion lend-lease; two billion to Russia via the UN Relief and Rehabilitation Administration; two and one-half billion in raw materials and tools supplied by Marshall Plan countries, which came from the U. S. in violation of Marshall Plan agreements.

It was not until December, 1950, the Congressman points out, that the State Department got around to plugging the Marshall Plan leaks to the Soviet Union. This is not meant to imply that the State Department was not aware long before this that the illegal pipeline to Russia was full. The only conclusion is that the State Department wanted it that way.

Russia, of course, got vast quantities of industrial equipment from Germany and China, all turned over to her by the boneheads running American foreign policy after the year 1945. Naturally, in Germany, the bright economic planners who are spending our tax dollars immediately set about rebuilding all the plants and machines that were dismantled and sent to Russia. In China, if the Communists had shown a little patience and stayed out of the Korean war, it is a virtual certainty that the State Department and the economic planners would have found a way to replace all the stuff Russia stole there.

Right now President Truman is beating the drums about the need for rearming against the Russian threat. Secretary of State Acheson looks brave and noble as he faces the Soviet hordes. Presidential Adviser W. Averell Harriman is a bulwark of blustering confidence against the onrush of Russian armed might.

Bensalem Twp. — William S. Appleton to Harry Baumgardner et ux, lot.

Bristol Twp. — Otto Grupp Jr. et ux to Albert L. Whitaker et ux, lots.

What the boys ought to do is retire to the back room. In November, 1947, President Truman saw he saw no reason to halt shipments of industrial equipment to Soviet Russia. Yet in fact, he gave a green light that year to shipments to Russia from the U. S. amounting to $432,000,000.

Harriman, roving ambassador under the Marshall Plan, in 1948 told Congress that he would have nothing to do with an embargo of goods to Iron Curtain countries.

Acheson, who wants to run everything including United Nations military campaign in Korea, sat stern and impeccable during 1950 while Italy shipped $26,897,000 worth of Marshall Plan goods to Iron Curtain countries; France, $18,694,000; and Belgium, $19,602,000. The British, doing what comes naturally, handed over $42,532,000 worth of war machinery to Russia and her satellites during the same year.

All of these transactions took place during the time when U. S. officials, from the President on down, were beating their breasts about what bad boys there are in the Soviet Politburo. We were told that for all intents and purposes we were at war with Russia. Winston Churchill labeled it the "cold war" period, but British forges kept pouring out some pretty hot stuff for the foe.

Now we are spending billions more replacing the goods sent to Russia from 1947 to date. That some of what we are producing to rearm Europe will find its way to Russia is an almost foregone conclusion.

So long as we keep such geniuses at work as those who are now running the country, we can expect little else. With all the intelligence services of the free world at their disposal, no one in or close to the White House had the sense to understand what kind of peace Russia wanted in the world after the war. Either they lacked the brains, or they still aren't very mad at Stalin and his aides. In either case the men who sanctioned shipments of U. S. supplies to Russia as late as 1950 don't belong on our team if we are going to have to fight a war.

NEWS OF SCHOOLS IN AREA---

All public, private and parochial schools in the Bristol area are invited to send news items for publication in this column which appears frequently.

George School

NEWTOWN, Apr. 12 — Awards and displays in the arts and French departments, home and exchange programs in the music department, were in the news this week at George School.

Jane Freeman of Sarasota, Fla., Sally Kelsey of North Canton, Conn., and Eleanor Magid of Morrisville were awarded gold keys by Principal Richard McFeely on April 9 for their fine arts work recently on display in the Regional Scholastic Art Exhibit, held in a Phila. store. The award came from Scholastic magazines for prize winning entries in the contest of National Scholastic Art Association.

The work of local and other George School students in the industrial arts department was on display this week in a window of a hardware store in Newtown — furniture, lamps, mechanical drawings — as arranged by Palmer Sharpless and Frank Brown, the school's industrial arts teachers.

Another pair of national awards were won on April 7 as teacher Bruce Dedinsky of George School entered students James Romer of Cambridge, Mass. and Sally Canfield of Port Washington, N. Y. in the sixth annual contest in the French language, sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of French. Both students won first places in the use of written French. Temple University played host.

Under the baton of Music Director Robert Steele, George School's mixed chorus, double octet and classical orchestra shared in the well-received annual spring musicals last Saturday night, and the string quartet also performed in the seven-part program. Mrs. Harold Lewis, assistant music director, worked with Mr. Steele in arranging the musicale. Julia Leedom of Newtown and Linda Rodgers of New York, N. Y. were student accompanists.

Morrisville High School was scheduled to put on an exchange program in the George School assembly room April 19. The two schools have "swapped" programs for several years. Horace Hutchison, music director, was bringing Morrisville's 40-piece band.

St. Francis Vocational School

This past week was one of considerable interest not to say excitement at St. Francis Vocational School, Eddington. It meant resumption of school after the Easter recess, not a thing of interest or excitement, but the re-meeting of classmates and swapping experiences does conduce to both.

Friday, the first Friday of April, meant not only the distribution of roll of honor cards but also receiving the third quarterly reports which this quarter fell on the same occasion.

Tullytown Borough

On Saturday, the sixth grade pupils and their teacher, Mrs. George Colville, enjoyed a trip to Philadelphia, where they visited the following places: Bulletin Building, Franklin Institute, Independence Hall, Benjamin Franklin grave, Betsy Ross House, Old Christ Church, Atwater Kent Museum. They had lunch at a restaurant. Those making the trip by train were: Michael Pirolli, Henry Frazier, Humbert Durante, Ella Trimble, Ronald Grady, "Bobby" Walterick, Thomas Roberts, Dale Fisher, Sharon Rosser, Loretta Paone, Wayne Stake, Barbara Forestal and Mrs. Colville.

Doll Centerpieces Are Gowned As Bridal Party

TREVOSE, Apr. 12—Mrs. Elmer Lafferty, Trevese, tendered her sister, Miss Dolores Gartner, Dixon avenue, a surprise personal and linen shower, Monday evening. The guest of honor was called there on the pretext of getting a home permanent. The living room of the Lafferty home was decorated in white paper streamers and wedding bells.

Dolls, dressed as the bride-to-be, and her attendants, graced the refreshment table. Yellow umbrellas of lace and gum drops were favors. Gifts were attached to white satin streamers which flowed from a white umbrella hanging from the ceiling.

Those enjoying the event: Mrs. Christian Kephart, Croydon; Mrs. Mary Haines, Mrs. Joseph Pryor and daughter Barbara Ann, Bristol; Mrs. Joseph Gartner, Mrs. Gerald Gartner, Mrs. Herman Gartner, Jr., Mrs. Herman Gartner, Sr., and daughter "Betty," Maple Shade; Mrs. Francis Sieber and daughter Mary Anne, Miss Marie Rentko and Miss Irene Rentko, Philadelphia; Mrs. John Appenzeller, Makefield; Mrs. Frank Purcell, Sr., Mrs. Thomas Purcell, the Misses Eleanor and Gloria Purcell, Fallsington; Mrs. Daniel Paust and Mrs. Garvin, Trevese; and Mrs. Leonard Purcell, Morrisville.

The wedding of Miss Gartner to

Mr. Robert Rentko, Philadelphia, will take place on Saturday at ten a. m., in St. Thomas Aquinas R. C. Church.
